

Towards Independence? How minority nationalism is re-configuring European space

October 25 and 26, 2017
School of Culture and Society, Aarhus University

PARTICIPANTS IN ALPHABETICAL ORDER

Montserrat Guibernau University of Cambridge

---

PhD in Social and Political Theory, King's College, Cambridge.

Professor of Politics at Queen Mary University of London 2005/2016.

Visiting Fellow at the Department of Politics and International Relations of the University of Cambridge, member of the Management Council at the Canada Blanch Centre, LSE. Visiting Professor at the Pompeu Fabra University 2017-18.

Recent publications: Identidad: Pertenencia, solidaridad y libertad en las sociedades modernas: Madrid Editorial TROTTA S.A 2017; Belonging: Solidarity and Division in Modern Societies (Polity, 2013); The Identity of Nations (Polity, 2007); Catalan Nationalism (Routledge, 2004); Nations without States (Polity, 1999); and The Ethnicity Reader (Polity, 2010) with J. Rex.

She has taught, researched and supervised graduate students at Queen Mary, having previously held an ESRC senior research fellowship at the University of Warwick and lectureships and a readership at the University of Barcelona and the Open University.

Visiting fellow: University of Quebec in Montreal, Canada, the University of Tampere, Finland, the Austrian Academy of Social Sciences, Austria, the London School of Economics and the University of Cambridge. She has lectured at New York University, Columbia University, Princeton, Harvard, the Hebrew University, Jerusalem. Invited speaker at the Beijing Forum, 2007.

The most recent award; Leverhulme Research Fellowship: 'Identity, Emotions and Political Mobilization'.

James Mitchell

Professor of Public Policy Academy of Government, University of Edinburgh

---

James Mitchell was educated at Aberdeen and Oxford Universities and has held chairs in Sheffield, Strathclyde and Edinburgh Universities. He is currently working on a number of funded research projects: recruited by referendum (a study of SNP and Green Party members following the independence referendum); the 2014 Scottish Independence Referendum of 2014; and the Scottish Election Study. His recent works include:

- James Mitchell, Hamilton 1967, Edinburgh Luath press October 2017
- James Mitchell and G Hassan (editors) (2016), Scottish National Party Leaders, Biteback Publishing, [part of Biteback's The British Leaders series]
- Rob Johns and James Mitchell (2016), Takeover: explaining the extraordinary rise of the SNP, Biteback Publishing.
- James Mitchell (2014), The Scottish Question, Oxford, Oxford University Press.
- C. Carman, R. Johns & J. Mitchell (2014), More Scottish than British: The 2011 Scottish Parliament Election, Basingstoke, Palgrave Macmillan.
- Gerry Hassan & James Mitchell (eds.) (2013), After Independence Edinburgh, Luath Press.
- J. Mitchell, R. Johns & L. Bennie (2011), The Scottish National Party, Oxford University Press, pp.224, ISBN 0199580006.
- R. Johns, J. Mitchell, D. Denver, & C. Pattie (2010), Voting for a Scottish Government: The Scottish Parliament Elections of 2007, Manchester, Manchester University Press, pp.256, ISBN 0719081084.
- J. Mitchell (2009), Devolution in the United Kingdom, Manchester, Manchester University Press pp.261, ISBN 978 0 7190 5358 0.

Klaus-Jürgen Nagel

Professor of Political Science, Universitat Pompeu Fabra (Barcelona)

---

Klaus-Jürgen Nagel is Professor of Political Science. His research interests include political theory (nationalism, federalism) and comparative politics (nationalist parties and movements, European Integration). He has also worked on Catalan history (national movement, working class movement, history of the wine sector).

He studied social sciences and history at the universities of Münster and Bielefeld and obtained his Staatsexamen in 1981 (in both history and social sciences) and his doctoral degree in 1989 (in philosophy).

Before he changed to Pompeu Fabra University, Nagel had worked at Universität Bielefeld (history department) and Johann Wolfgang Goethe-Universität Frankfurt am Main (social sciences department).