TRAVEL

- For Danish / Northern German/ Swedish delegates there are extensive train and bus routes to Aarhus with direct routes from all the major towns and cities in the country including via Copenhagen, via Malmö (Sweden), via Hamburg (Germany). For those flying in you can avail of budget airlines (Ryanair, Easyjet, Wizz etc) to one of the nearby airports. Copenhagen, Aarhus, Billund and Aalborg all have bus or train links to Aarhus. Billund is the largest airport in the region (Jylland). Ryanair, Air France, KLM, Luftansa and British Airways fly from a number of European cities to Billund. Ryanair flies to all the airports in Denmark from London Stansted for as little as 200DKK each way (and from selected other airports see Ryanair.com). The Danish capital, Copenhagen, is one of the hub airports of Scandinavia and has frequent flights from the US, UK, China, Middle East and the rest of Europe including via the very well priced Norwegian Air (inc. New York, Boston, Chicago, London, Manchester, Madrid, Bilbao); Easyjet (from Edinburgh, Manchester, Bristol, London Gatwick, Paris, Berlin etc), Ryanair (inc. Dublin, Edinburgh, Liverpool, London Luton, Brussels, Madrid, Rome, Thessaloniki etc), and SAS (inc. Washington, Beijing, Istanbul). It takes c4 hours to travel by bus from Copenhagen Airport (and costs c150DKK each way (if booked in advance via flixbus.dk) to central Aarhus and c3-3:30 hours from Copenhagen Airport to Aarhus direct by train. Train tickets to Aarhus can be booked cheaply and in advance through purchasing time-specific 'orange tickets' on the DSB.dk website or app (expensive if on the day).

ACCOMMODATION

- There are a lot of accommodation options in Aarhus city centre (which is 20 minutes away from the Moesgaard Manor campus by public transport – City bus 18). As Aarhus is the second city in Denmark and the location of one of the biggest universities in Scandinavia there is no shortage of cheap(ish) hotels and guest houses. Some of the cheaper hotel options include WakeUp Aarhus (<https://www.wakeupcopenhagen.com/the-hotels/aarhus/#/search>), which opened in July 2017. It has 300+ rooms and prices start at 400DKK per night and is on the bus route to Moesgaard. Also to be recommended is Cabinn Hotel Aarhus (<https://www.cabinn.com/en/hotel/cabinn-aarhus-hotel>), which was refurbished in 2015, has 400 rooms and prices start at 500DKK.
- For those who like to sample what it is really like to live in a city Airbnb has become a popular and affordable option in Denmark.

THINGS TO DO

- Aarhus was the European Capital of Culture in 2016 and so has many cultural highlights to enjoy including world renowned museums such as Moesgaard, Den Gamle By (one of the oldest open air museums in the world) or Aros (an award-winning art museum). Its public library – Dokk1 – has also won awards. Aarhus has many small restaurants and pubs with lots of (relatively) cheap Danish beer and fresh Nordic Cuisine. Cheap pubs can be found on Frederiksgade, more refined local choices try the Latin Quarter or Jægergårdsgade. (<http://jaegergaardsgade.dk/>) See visitaarhus.dk
