

**Saturday evening Launch**

The Walking Seminar: Embodied Research in Emergent Anthropocene Landscapes is a 56-page, tabloid newspaper format publication edited by archaeologist Nick Shepherd, urbanist Christian ErNSTEN, and documentary photographer Dirk-Jan Visser. It explores ideas around landscape as archive, the challenges of Anthropogenic environmental change, and the intersections between scholarly research and artistic research methods. Free copies will be available.

Nick Shepherd
Christian Ersten
Dirk-Jan Visser

The Walking Seminar

Embodied research in emergent Anthropocene landscapes

"Walking is the speed for noticing – and for thinking. The Table Mountain Walking Seminars suggest just how much we need walking to imagine alternatives to the intertwined human and nonhuman catastrophes of the Anthropocene."

– Anna Tsing, Aarhus University and the University of California, Santa Cruz

"According to a German proverb, 'you think with your feet'. I am impressed to see how 'walking seminars' – by combining scholarly and bodily practices – are creating new and inspiring communities for the future: of empirical observations, challenging ideas, and interesting people."

– Cornelius Holtorf, Linnaeus University